THE MUSIC

Overture Rosamunde (Die Zauberharfe) D644 No 1 (1820)

Schubert's last venture into the world of the Viennese theatre came in December 1823, when he provided incidental music for Helmina von Chézy's pastoral play Rosamunde, Princess of Cyprus at the Theater an der Wien. The play was a flop, though the music was praised. Schubert seems to have put the score together in a hurry (perhaps borrowing an Entr'acte from the 'Unfinished' Symphony); and he never wrote an overture. Instead, he used the Overture to his romantic opera Alfonso and Estrella, which had been written in 1822 but not performed. But in the 1830s and '40s, after Schubert's death, the title of Rosamunde was given to published arrangements of a different Overture, in C minor and major, from the incidental music which he had written in 1820 for a play called Die Zauberharfe or 'The Magic Harp'. This renaming may possibly reflect the composer's intentions for a future revival of Rosamunde; and in any case it meant that the piece became famous as 'the Rosamunde Overture'. Just to complicate its history further, in the minor-key introduction and the coda Schubert reworked ideas from another, still earlier, work, his D major Overture in the Italian Style of 1817. But the opening chord-sequence, which returns later in the piece in different forms, is a recurring motif in the Zauberharfe music; and the first theme of the main Allegro vivace is also taken from the play, in which it represents the innocent heroine who finds herself in danger.

Aldbrough Music Club Choir

The Aldbrough Music Club was founded in 1952 by Benjamin Britten and Peter Peacock and has gradually evolved into the choral society it is today. We currently have over a hundred members who meet at Aldbrough Community Centre on Tuesday evening September to May. Our purpose is to share the enjoyment of making music together at the highest possible standard, in which we are encouraged by our conductor, Edm Fiwet. We are joined in our concerts, mainly in local venues including Snape Maltings Concert Hall, by professional soloists and orchestras.

Our most recent concerts reflect the range of music which the choir is able to perform. William Walton's Beshazzar's Feast in the autumn of 2009 at Snape Maltings Concert Hall, a spring 2010 concert at Orford Church which included motets by Alessandro Scarlatti and Vivaldi's Gloria, Haydn's Creation at Snape in May 2010, and the ever popular Handel Messiah in December 2010.

The choir is a registered charity and is a member of Making Music.

Prometheus Orchestra

After conducting a number of choral concerts with the Aldeburgh Music Club Choir and Framlingham's Phoenix Singers, Edmond Fivet realised that there were many talented instrumental players living in and around Suffolk who were providing the essential orchestras for these concerts.

The opportunity arose, in May 2008, to play some orchestral music at an Aldeburgh Music Club concert at Orford which included Beethoven's First Symphony and the Overture to the Creatures of Prometheus. Performances were much appreciated by audiences, many of whom suggested to Edmond that orchestral music of such high quality was seldom heard outside major concert halls and that more would be appreciated. At the same time, a number of the regular players asked if it would be possible to play together more often in future. And so the Prometheus Orchestra was born!

The orchestra was co-founded by Edmond Fivet, Liz Page and Pam Munks in 2009 under its guiding Patron, the late Sir Charles Mackerras CH.

Aldeburgh Music Club

It was on 6 April 1952 that the Aldeburgh Music Club first met at Crag House, the home of Benjamin Britten and Peter Pears. Those members who wished to play music would meet once a month and, from the start, membership was open to 'all practising musicians, amateur and professional, in Aldeburgh and district'. They were, however, restricted to thirty-five in number and by invitation of the committee – and so it remained for many years.

There were three groups – recorder players, singers and string players, who met to play on Club Nights. During the Club's first year they were joined by Imogen Holst, who became Conductor and then Vice-President and was associated with the Club until her death in 1984. The first concert was held in August 1953 and in the following few years the Club participated in the Aldeburgh Festival. Rosamund Strode began her life-long involvement with the Club in 1964; she became Vice-President after Britten's death in 1976. Rae Woodland became President after Pears' death in 1986 and is now President Emeritus.

By the early 1980's the number of recorder and string players had dwindled; the Club was, inevitably, evolving. A pattern of three concerts a year developed and under Philip Reed's direction, in 1986, professional soloists were used. It has been so ever since. In 1995 the Club gave its first performance at the Snape Maltings Concert Hall. How different to the small gatherings at Crag House! There is, though, an important constant. The Club's Constitution, from that start, declares that:

'The Club is to meet together to make music, and for mutual help and criticism.'

Concert Manager

Humphrey Burton CBE is best known for his music broadcasting. Joining the BBC in 1955 he was, by 1965, the first Head of the new Music and Arts Department. He went on to be a founder member of London Weekend Television as Head of Drama, Arts & Music and later edited and hosted the arts magazine Aquarius. He returned to the BBC in 1975 to head Music and Arts again. He hosted Omnibus and then inaugurated Arena and the long-running series Young Musician of the Year. For the past 30 years he has combined freelance activity as a director of televised opera and concerts with work as an impresario, broadcaster and biographer. Now resident in Aldeburgh, Humphrey is an energetic champion of amateur music through the Aldeburgh Music Club. The Club is honoured to have so eminent a President.

Alan Britten had a long and notable career in the oil industry, followed by service as Chairman of the English Tourism Council. Throughout that time, he maintained his musical interests and was a regular visitor to Aldeburgh Festivals. From 1989–1999 he served on the Council of what was then the Aldeburgh Foundation, after which he was appointed President of the Friends of Aldeburgh Music, a position which he still holds. He is an Honorary Fellow of the Trinity Laban Conservatoire. He is also a Board member of Trinity College London, and a member of the Britten-Pears Local Liaison Committee. As Benjamin Britten's nephew, Alan represents a direct link with one of the Aldeburgh Music Club's founding fathers and we especially value his support for what he describes as 'one of my uncle's outstanding legacies'.

Valerie Potter joined the Aldeburgh Music Club on retirement. She had been a keen singer at school and had been fortunate in teaching for a large part of her career at William Ellis School which had an excellent Music Department. There she resumed singing and helped with the organisation of concerts and productions.

Earlier on she had stayed with her future mother-in-law, Mary Potter (AMC Chairman 1959–63) who was hosting a rehearsal of King Arthur in the drawing room of Crag House. Then, as now, the choir needed their coffee and Valerie made it for them. After joining the choir she soon became active as a Committee member at a very important time for the Club. This was when the first concert in Snape Maltings Concert Hall was being planned, requiring a complete reappraisal of the AMC resources, both musical and financial. After retiring as Chairman of AMC (1998–2003) Valerie was made a Vice-President.
